

SCULPTURE at SCENIC WORLD

MEDIA RELEASE

THURSDAY April 27, 2017

Sculpture at Scenic World sets the stage for a romantic getaway

Visitors to the Blue Mountains are invited to make the most of the iconic Sculpture at Scenic World exhibition before it draws to a close on May 7, with the cooler Autumn temperatures providing the perfect backdrop for a romantic weekend getaway.

Sculpture at Scenic World 2017 has attracted tens of thousands of visitors since the exhibition launched on April 7, as families, art lovers and couples come to experience the incredible array of artworks in the natural Jurassic rainforest.

The full public program including daily guided tours, kids' workshops, Sculpture Otherwise and Woodstock has also proven popular with local, interstate and international guests.

Following a bumper Easter peak season, Scenic World's Managing Director, Anthea Hammon, said couples and art lovers were well placed to plan their visit now to enjoy a romantic mountains getaway.

"Sculpture at Scenic World has evolved to become a world class art exhibition which attracts artists and visitors from across the globe," she said. "The unique combination of stunning scenery, brilliant Autumnal colours, and thought provoking artworks in the rainforest presents a great opportunity for couples to experience the Blue Mountains at its finest."

Sculpture at Scenic World Exhibition Curator, Justin Morrissey, added that visitors have taken to social media to share their experiences and thoughts about the artworks on display.

"It's fascinating to see such a broad array of interpretations from people of all ages and backgrounds, which highlights how accessible and memorable the exhibition is year after year," he said.

Scenic World has partnered with a range of hotels to provide exclusive accommodation packages during the exhibition until May 7. Including a Sculpture at Scenic World Unlimited Discovery Pass, breakfast, overnight accommodation and free Wi-Fi, prices start from just $249 per couple.

Visitors are invited to share their experiences on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter using the hashtag #ScenicSculpture. All entries go in the draw to win an iPad Mini.
